Heroes Assemble at the Disneyland[®] Resort

Make the most of your visit to Avengers Campus at Disney California Adventure[®] Park.¹

The wait is over! The exciting all-new land, Avengers Campus, is now open at Disney California Adventure[®] Park in the Disneyland[®] Resort. Anchored by Guardians of the Galaxy-Mission: BREAKOUT!, the land encompasses approximately six acres packed with new adventures and thrills. If you're ready to discover your own inner Super Hero, then take a look at what awaits you.

"I think everyone has a desire to feel like a hero. It's part of the human psyche," says Brent Strong, Executive Creative Director for Walt Disney Imagineering. "The core idea behind Avengers Campus was to create a place where the Avengers can train future heroes."

WEB SLINGERS: A SPIDER-MAN ADVENTURE

Board the WEB Slinger vehicle and test your skills flinging your own webs as you help Spider-Man stop the Spider-Bots which are creeping and crawling everywhere! "We used super-cool, innovative technologies for the attraction," Strong explains.

"You actually feel as if you're helping to save the Campus. The nature of the attraction is all about teamwork and building camaraderie," Strong says. "We designed WEB SLINGERS: A Spider-Man Adventure so Guests of all ages could experience it. The family is the team. After all, the idea of families having fun together is core to everything we do. It goes back to Walt Disney's original vision for the parks."

TEAM UP WITH SUPER HEROES

Venture into the ruins of an Ancient Sanctum to encounter Doctor Strange as he trains Guests in the ways of a Sorcerer by bringing the Sanctum to life with powerful spells. "I like that we've included a mystical, mysterious side to the experience," Strong says. "It adds a whole other aspect to the Campus." While you're exploring, keep an eye out for other Avengers on the move, including Black Panther, Iron Man, Captain Marvel, Ant-Man and The Wasp, Black Widow and more!

ENJOY SUPER-SIZED OR SUPER-SHRUNK FOOD

When all the action works up an appetite, visit Pym Test Kitchen featuring IMPOSSIBLE™, where Ant-Man and The Wasp have used Pym Particles to shrink or supersize the menu offerings. You can even watch pretzels being "shrunk" by bombarding Pym particles on the pretzel conveyor belt. "There's everything from a giant meatball to an enormous candy bar, which happens to be my favorite," Strong admits. "Everything tastes terrific," he adds. "The culinary team and Pym staff have worked closely together to make sure the food is not only fun looking, but also very tasty." For more information head to Disneyland.com/AvengersCampus.

The Perfect Pairings

A Disney Sommelier talks about exploring wines. Use these tips at the EPCOT® International Food & Wine Festival running through November 20th.¹

Is there such a thing as the perfect wine pairing? “Yes, but it’s not what you might think,” says Debbi Sacleux, Disney Sommelier. With her pairing tips, you’ll be an expert in the making when you visit the EPCOT® International Food & Wine Festival.

“Remember the rule about red wine with red meat and white wine with white meat or fish?” she asks. “Well, what I have to say about that is ‘PSHAW!’ If you’re not a white wine fan, or red wines aren’t your thing, why should you feel limited by those rules? If you order a red wine when you really love white wines, then you’re not going to be happy. You should love what you’re sipping. The really perfect pairing is the food, the wine—and you!”

BOLD WITH BOLD, LIGHT WITH LIGHT

About the only ‘rule’ Sacleux, who works closely with Disney Chefs, follows is to choose a wine that doesn’t overpower the food’s flavor and vice-versa. “You don’t want the wine flavors to get lost or be overpowered by the food,” she says.

“A steak with blue cheese or a dark chocolate dessert pairs well with a bold wine like a cabernet. A lighter dish like salmon or a dessert soufflé and a Moscato or creamy Chardonnay is a match made in heaven. But you might also want to pair salmon with a Pinot Noir. They’re wonderful together!”

SIP OUT OF YOUR COMFORT ZONE

“Don’t hesitate to experiment and explore,” Sacleux advises. “The Festival offers hundreds of international and domestic wine offerings, so it’s a great place to discover new flavors and combinations. If you like something, then it’s the perfect pairing for you.”

“If you’re doing wine flights, start with the lightest wines and go to the heaviest,” Sacleux advises. Take time between each tasting, or cleanse your palate with water. Winemakers are like painters with liquid. They’re introducing so many interesting flavor notes into the wines they create, you want to pace yourself and take time to savor them all.”

MAKE TIME FOR THE CARDMEMBER PHOTO OPPORTUNITY

Take a break from feasting and sipping to pose for special photos at our private Cardmember location. You’ll receive complimentary photo downloads of your photos featuring some of your favorite Disney Characters to remember your fun day at the festival.^{3, 5}

Travel into a Galaxy Far, Far Away

Live your own Star Wars adventure on Star Wars: Galactic Starcruiser, coming in 2022.¹

From the moment you arrive at the Star Wars: Galactic Starcruiser terminal at Walt Disney World® Resort, you’ll know you’re about to take off for an adventure of a lifetime. Because this is a Star Wars adventure unlike anything you’ve ever experienced before.

“I believe this is one of the most unique experiences we’ve ever created,” says Ann Morrow Johnson, Executive Producer and Executive Creative Director for Star Wars: Galactic Starcruiser. “It’s a living ecosystem. You’re living inside a ship, actually stepping inside the story and participating in it.”

THE BIG “WHAT IF”

“The concept began with us asking ourselves ‘What if you could actually go on a cruise in space?’ That turned out to be an incredibly complex idea. It required a ton of collaboration, and from the very beginning we decided that the words ‘this is how we usually do it,’ would not be allowed in any of our hundreds of meetings. Because there is nothing ‘usual’ about this experience!”

Passengers jump to hyperspace and rendezvous with the Halcyon starcruiser—your new “home” in space for two days and nights. From the atrium to the cabins featuring in-wall berths, just like Chewbacca sleeps in in the Star Wars films, and windows with views of deep space, every detail immerses you in the story.

“During your voyage, Characters will invite you to participate in different scenarios,” Johnson says. “It’s up to you to decide what you will do. You are creating the story.”

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR VOYAGE

“The most important tip I have for our Guests simply is to say ‘yes,’” Johnson says. “Whatever opportunities present themselves—and there are many—I hope Guests are open to trying. The more you do, the more immersed you are in the story.” Cardmembers, look out for more information about the all-new Star Wars: Galactic Starcruiser immersive experience at Walt Disney World® Resort, coming in 2022.

Join the Adventures on Mickey Mouse Funhouse

Tune into a whimsical new animated series on Disney Junior premiering this summer.

The Sensational Six are back again with lighthearted, imaginative adventures for youngsters ages two to five. And this time, Mickey, Minnie, Donald, Daisy, Goofy and Pluto have a brand new friend—Funny—an enchanted playhouse who leads them on their magical escapades.

WHERE IMAGINATION AND FRIENDSHIP PLAY

“When we began developing Mickey Mouse Funhouse several years ago, we wanted to combine the feeling of gentle wonder and learning of Mickey Mouse Clubhouse with the fast-paced excitement and wacky silliness of Mickey and the Roadster Racers,” says Phil Weinstein, Executive Producer, who worked on both of the previous shows.

“Mickey Mouse Funhouse offers the best of both worlds. The themes of the stories center around creativity, imaginative play and friendship, but they’re also very funny. Kids have very high emotional intelligence. They understand comedy and silliness. We also wanted the show to be fun for the grown-ups who were watching it with their kids.”

A HOUSE FULL OF PERSONALITY

When the gang is looking for an adventure they go to the Funhouse Forest where they meet a house called Funny, who is a pal of Mickey’s. Inside the house a staircase appears to a delightful song, “Stairs to Anywhere.” When Mickey and his friends go up the staircase, they find doors leading to different lands, for example Majestica, where the adventure begins. During their adventure, they find answers to questions they may have, for instance, “Are dragons good or bad?” Afterward, they will learn that you can’t judge a dragon by his scales. “It’s a gentle lesson about acceptance and understanding” Weinstein says. “But the messages are always wrapped in fun entertainment.”

The show, which features two 11-minute episodes also includes a get-up-and-move break so kids can stretch and dance. “There’s a great song called, ‘Stretch Break.’ It’s really cute to see a house dancing!” Weinstein chuckles.

“It’s always fun to write for Mickey and the gang,” Weinstein says. “They’ve been with us our whole lives so we instinctively understand their personalities. They balance each other perfectly.”

Don’t miss the Mickey Mouse Funhouse special “Mickey the Brave” on Disney Junior July 16th. Then catch the series when it premieres on August 20th. Pick up fun Disney Junior Mickey Mouse products at Disney store and shopDisney.com and settle in to watch the show. Cardmembers save 10% on select purchases when you use your Disney Visa Debit Card.²

FINDING THE STORY

"Creating the story was a big challenge," says Beau Flynn, Producer. "Disney had wanted to create a film inspired by Jungle Cruise for years, but the project was on-again, off-again. Then, Michael Green wrote a script that got everyone excited. The key is the tension between the two strong main characters. Once we'd established their personalities and relationship, the story began coming together in a beautiful, natural way."

JUNGLES, RIVERS AND WATERFALLS

The film was shot in Kauai, Hawai'i and Atlanta, Georgia. "We found this incredible lagoon in Kauai and built the port of Porto Velho to scale. It's one of the greatest builds I've ever been part of. The cruise boat is also built to scale. It's a beautiful piece of machinery," Flynn says. The film team continued their stage and green-screen work in Atlanta where they built a water tank that held hundreds of thousands of gallons of water and was able to generate six-foot waves."

THE BACK SIDE OF WATER

As anyone who's ever experienced the Jungle Cruise attraction knows, a healthy heaping of the fun comes from each cruise boat Skipper's non-stop patter and groan-worthy puns. "We have a great love for the Jungle Cruise attraction," Flynn says. "We worked a lot of the attraction's dialogue and visuals into the film. So pay close attention!"

"Taking this iconic attraction and figuring out how to create a tentpole film from it has been an extraordinary experience," Flynn concludes. "Having the opportunity to adapt an original Disneyland® Park attraction that was created by Walt Disney himself has been one of the biggest honors of my career."

How Walt Disney Planted a Jungle in Anaheim

"We pictured ourselves far from civilization in the remote jungles of Asia and Africa," Walt Disney once explained as his inspiration for the Jungle Cruise at Disneyland® Park. This iconic attraction has been taking Guests on an adventure down tropical waterways since the park opened in 1955.

But how do you create a tropical jungle in just a little over a year? You plant trees—a lot of them! "At first, the plan was to locate the Jungle Cruise where Space Mountain is today," says Kevin Lively, story editor for Walt Disney Imagineering. "But there were some big eucalyptus trees on the west side, so plans changed. The orange and walnut trees were planted upside down to look like jungle roots, and Bill Evans, the chief horticulturist traveled all over Southern California purchasing every full-grown tree he could find!"

Meanwhile, when the river bed excavation was complete, the crew mounted a camera to a station wagon and drove it in the trench to film the developing attraction for the Disneyland television show. "Walt himself narrated that first televised ride," Lively says. "It was like Disneyland® Park was the world's biggest toy for the world's biggest kid!"

Look for clever, new scenes during your next cruise which have been added to build on the original story and humor of the iconic attraction.
